PRESENTATION BY EX-PRESIDENT BLANCO—RECIVED FOR THE CITY BY MAYOR EDSON.

General Hancock was the most conspicuous figure among about 100 people who were scated or standing yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock on a platform which had been erected opposite the veiled statue of General Bolivar, "the liberator of five republics," in Central Park, near Eighth-ave, and the Eighty-first-st. entrance. With General Hancock were members of his staff, Assistant Adjutant-General W. D. Whipple, Colonel Charles S. Sullivan, Captains John S. Wharton, G. S. L. Ward, W. D. Heach and Lieutenant H. C. Reilly, Representing the Navy were Rear Admiral G. H. Cooper, Captain J. N. Miller, Commandors A. V. Reed, Frank Wildes, G. C. Wilts, Lieutenants Muligan, Windsor and Wallace. Park Commissioners Viele, Wales and Crimmins were there. Mayor Edson arrived shertly before the speechmaking began, and with him came General Guzman Blanco, ex-president of Venezuela, and A. M. Soteldo, Minister from Venezuela to the United States; these two representing the Nation that had given the statue to New-York. Venezuela was not without other representatives on the platform, for many women with dark flashing eyes were there whose complexious suggested the bloom of the tropics. Under the shadow of the trees and scattered about the open space on which the statue stood were about a thousand people.

About 4:30 o'clock the strains of martial music were heard and soon there emerged from the winding road that led to the top of the hill the scarlet plumes of Colonel Hamilton, of the 5th United States Artillery, and his staff, all mounted. As the troops filed into the square and circled around the statue they made a fine picture with drooping banners, many colored uniforms, and glistening bayonets and accoutrements, all thrown into showy relief sgainst a background of vivid green. There were also present the veteran corps of the 7th Regiment, many colored uniforms, and glistening bayonets B and M from Fort Hamilton, Battery II from Fort Columbus, and Battery CEIVED FOR THE CITY BY MAYOR EDSON.

This is not only a work of art erected in this realm of art and nature, not only a memorial to a hero, a patriot and a statesman, but it is a tribute of affection and esteem roun a young republic of South America to her sister of

The audience was enthusiastic in spite of the heat, and cheered General Viele heartily. Then there stood up a tail man, with broad shoulders and military bearing, handsome bronzed features, and gray hair and beard. He was Gene ral Blanco. In a graceful little speech he presented the statue in the name of the people and government of Venezuela. Next Mr. Soteldo unveiled the statue. He made a short speech, and some other person pulled the ropes that caused the flags to fall aside, disclosing on a granite pedestal the figure of General Bolivar scated on a prancing horse, with proud arched neck. General Bolivar is represented leaning forward with his left hand grasping the bridle and his right hand outstretched pointing with a sword as if leading a charge. The andience seemed to think well of it and cheered lustily. Then Mayor think well of it and cheered lustily. Then Mayor Edson accepted the statue in behalf of New-York. Frederick R. Condert delivered an oration on "The Life and Character of General Bolivar," showing how Bolivar deserved to be ranked with Washington. In conclusion wreaths of flowers were placed on the pedestal by members of General Blanco's family.

In the evening the uniformed battalion of the veterans of the 7th Regiment gave a luncheon at Irving Hall to the guests of the occasion. FAILURE IN THE DRY-GOODS DISTRICT.

FAILURE IN THE DRY-GOODS DISTRICT.

CARHART, WHITFORD & CO SUSPEND-PEARCE & HALL, HATS, EMBAREASSED.

There was considerable excitement and many exclamations of surprise throughout the dry-goods district yesterdry when a score of messenger boys carrying sealed envelopes containing messages from R. G. Dun & Co. to the effect that Carhart, Whitford & Co., manufacturers of clothing, No. 422 Broadway, had suspended payment. The firm was recognized as one of the most important firms engaged in the wholesale clothing business in this city. When, in June, 1865, it succeeded to the business previously carried on by Thomas F. Carhart & Co. and Shafer, Whitford & Co., its members were Thomas F. Carhart, William H. Whitford, Albert T. Hamilton, John B. Van Wagenen and Henry Shafer. The latter died in the following December, and the surviving partners continued the business without changing the firm name. From April 2, 1867, to August 18, 1875, the late George Opdyke was a special partner in the firm for $100,000, and his son-in-law. Edward C. Strobell, was a general partner for the same period. During the winter of 1867-68 runners that the firm was embarrassed were actively circulated, and the partners acknowledged that inability to rapidly collect several hundred thousand dollars of outstanding accounts which were due them by tradors in the Southern and Western States had somewhat hampered them. About that time they opened a retail department under the style of "Baldwin the Clothler," and this proved of considerable benefit to them. Edmund H. Carhart was admitted to the firm august 1877, and in the fall of 1882 Theodore F. Carhart died. Then a new firm was formed with all the surviving partners as general partners, and Mrs. Marie Louise Carhart, John B. Van Wagenen, and Edmund H. Carhart, special partners in the sum $300,000 to January 29, 1883. At that time it was asserted that the general partners also furnished $300,000 capital. Mr. Hamilton died on April 30 last. LOOKING FOR A LOST COUNTRY GIRL. Search was made yesterday for Miss Loie Austin, the daughter of a farmer living at Fowler, St. Lawrence County, New-York. She was described Lawrence County, New-York. She was described as twenty-five years old, and wore a brown flannel dress. A week ago she left her home after a disagreement with her parents and walked eight miles to the nearest railway station. She had only $10. Her relatives learned that she had purchased a ticket for Kome, but they were unable to get any trace of her there, and they concluded that she had gone to this city. Her brother arrived yesterday and consulted with Superintendent Walling regarding her flight. He thought that she would look for employment, as she had talked of supporting herself. It was learned that this Austin was engaged to marry a young Englishman some years ago, but she quarrelled with him and broke off the engagement. Recently she received a letter from him. He had been married in the West, and had been separated from his wife. Miss Austin's brother did not think she wished to meet her former lover.

A MONKEY DANCING ON HEATED IRON.

Five hundred people stood in Broadway in front of the St. Charles Hotel yesterday to watch the antics of a black monkey which ran up and down the fire-escapes on the building. The animal had opened a second-story window and climbed out upon the balcony in search of amusement. As soon as his feet had touched the iron ladders and railings of the escape, heated by the sun's rays, he gave a cry of rage and began a long race up and down the iron ladder. Porters from the hotel and policemen of the Broadway Squad in vain tried to induce the monkey to return to the room, where Winfred Shedman, a boarder at the hotel and the owner of the monkey, was sleeping blissfully unconscious of the elatter outside. An iron chain hanging from the monkey's neck clanked against the fire-escapes as the animal pursued his mad career. The crowd in the street hooted and the drivers of obstructed wagons and omnibuses shouted loudly. At length Mr. Shedman was aroused. He poked his head out of the window and called "Panchokso!" The monkey instantly ran to him and permitted himself to be taken into the room. Mr. Shedman said that Panchokoo was a trick monkey of the "black spider" variety captured on the shore of the Amazon Rievr. A MONKEY DANCING ON HEATED IRON.

PART OF THE FOX ESTATE SOLD.

A large crowd attended the auction sale of the Fox estate at the Exchange salesroom yesterday. The property comprised 260 lots in One-hundred-and-sixty-fifth, One-hundred-and-sixty-seventh and One-hundred-and-sixty-ninth-sis. Stebbins and Westchester-aves, and the Grand Southern Boulevard, and is directly on the line of the routes laid out for suburban rapid transit, and is prepared for building. The attendance was marked by the absence of speculators, and the purchasers were numerous and apparently of a class of people who wanted homes. There were 130 lots sold, at an aggregate price of $23,500. The highest price paid for a corner lot was $600. The remainder of the lots will be put up at auction by James L. Wells on July 1. The Fox estate is part of a tract of land bought from the Indians in 1656 by the ances ors of William W. Fox. The lots now for sale are the property of Charlotte Fox Trowbridge, the daughter of Mr. Fox and the wife of Minor Trowbridge. PART OF THE FOX ESTATE SOLD.

TURNING A CLASSICAL QUOTATION.

Ag explosion only less resonant than that of the dynamite projectiles fired from Fort Lafayette Monday was caused by a joke perpetrated by one of the party that assembled there to witness the experiment, on Tursday. Henry Steers, the well-known ship-builder, was asked by a gentleman who had just been introduced to him whether he was the son of the celebrated ship-builder of that name. He replied in the affirmative and spoke with natural pride of his ancestors. "Him illes Idachrymae," said another gentleman, "Hence these Steers." The joke and the party were equally dry, and it, like the refreshments that followed, was entirely at the expense of Mr. Steers.

The box was received by an officer of the vessel and placed in the room set apart for valuable articles. When the vessel sailed it was found that the room had been broken into and the box of gold stolen. THE MAORIS IN ENGLAND.

The King, like his four colleagues and compatriots, was dressed in a tweed suit. The party travel very quietly, and but for their color would be quite incognito. They all wear tweed suits, carrying umbrellas and portmanteus, and wear boots. The King is the only one who has any remnant of barbaric display, and his shark's tooth suspended by a black ribbon from his right ear and bunch of fish-bones hanging from his buttonhole are his only distinguishing ornaments. He is a man of middle height, fairly robust, and with a face deeply scarred with tattoo marks in a minute scroll-patterr, which covers the entire forehead and features except just below the eyes. He has a large intelligent head and mild aspect. The King left New-Zealand undecided what he means to do in England. He is over sixty years of age, and has a most pleasant and agreeable manner. He laughs and talks with his chiefs freely. Te Wheoro, who has been in the House of Representatives for several years, has the best physique. He is a powerful, broad-shouldered,man, wearing a mustache and goatee, and he is the most silent of this remarkably tacitarn band. Patara te Tuhi, the ex-editor of the paper whose type was, smashed by, anarmed party under Rewi, has a quiet, dignified presence, which prepossesses the observer in his favor, in spite of tattoo marks, which are lighter and not so thickly put on as those of the King. His small features of good contour are clean shaven, save only a gray mustache, which shows that he is advanced in years. Hori Ropia is tall and spare, and is not so dark as his companions. He might be taken for a half-caste. He is conspicuous for his height, slimness, and comparative youth. He wears a mustache. Ropia and Major To Wheoro are not tattooed. Topia Turoa, a chief of high rank, is the oldest and most infirm member of the Embassy. He is afflicted with rheumatic gout, leans heavily on a stick, and moves about with some difficulty. He has full gray whiskers and mustache, and is shaved on the chin. He is of short stature and in youn

All the members of the Embassy wear the blue ribben. The King, like the rest of his followers, snokes cigarettes by the dozen. During the voyage they liked to sit on deck by themselves, and they were always the first to see land. They have contributed largely to the amusement of the passengers, by singing, dancing, and indulging in eccentic treaks. Mr. Skidmore, the interpreter, informed me that the reason of the visit to this country was private, adding, "I cannot tell you; it is not my place to toli what it is." He subsequently said that the party had come to see about "their grievances." They intended to wait on Lord Derby with regard to the confiscation of their land by the Colonists.

GOVERNOR PLAISTED ON BLAINE.

GOVERNOR PLAISTED ON BLAINE.

From The Renaches Journal.

The Democratic organs of the State have begun mud flinging at Mr. Blaine at this early stage of the campaign. Before they proceed any further in the use of their squirt-guns against Mr. Blaine, we wish they would examine the following concerning him written by ex-Governor Plaisted, the late Democratic Governor of this State, which may be found in a letter bearing the date of Washington, May 29, 1876;

"Blaine will be nominated at Cincianeti. Remember this. He has given to the party its present prestige and vantage ground, and it would be as wicked as unvise to allow another to enter into his labors. The 'mud machine' will not touch him. He is a man instinctively right, and I believe will be found not only not guilty of corrupt practice, but incapable of it. You know I have never been a partisan of Mr. Blaine, but I have seen him here, what he has done, and know him as never before. In-significant are all personal and local squabbles, bekerings and claims, compared with the interest Maine has in the election of Blaine President of the United States, and in the brilliant administration he is sure to give the country. The people of Maine will give little heed to such squabbles except to stamp them out with as little ceremony as possible. Very truly your friend.
